The 2008 Dirt Bike Show is looking set to be one of the best shows to date; top manufacturers have already committed to displaying their brand new 2009 models ahead of the NEC Motorcycle Show. The Dirt Bike show staged at Stoneleigh Park on the 13th- 16th November has gained the support from the industries leading companies, Suzuki, Honda, Yamaha, Kawasaki, KTM, Husaberg and BMW have all once again continued their support for the Show.

The Dirt Bike Show, which is Britain's largest off road exhibition, will once again attract big crowds to the Stoneleigh Park venue, with it being the first big motorcycle show in the UK this year, plus having the major manufacturers backing it, they are sure to up their attendance figures from previous years.

Over 120,000 visitors have visited the Dirt Bike Show since it first opened at the Coventry venue in 2000. This year is set to be no exception, with the return of the World renown Purple Helmets putting on their spectacular performances in the Live Arena plus the opportunity for fans to pick up some fantastic bargains before Christmas in the ever popular retail zone and see all the new models from all the top manufacturers, 2008 is once again set to be another massive event.

One of the organisers from the show, Dave Watson from Promoto commented "We're really pleased to once again have the support from all the people in the industry and we have no doubt that this year's show will once again be bigger than better than before. We have a number of exciting projects happening this year and it's great to be supported the way we are by all the manufacturers."

Keep you eyes peeled on the Show's website, www.dirtbikeshow.co.uk for further information. The Off-Road and Road-Racing stars will be there merging with the crowds and will give the fans the opportunity to meet their heroes, have autographs signed and pictures taken outside the racing paddock.
