

For immediate release 17 August 2009

Save time and money by booking in advance for the Dirt Bike Show

Tickets are now on sale for Europe's largest off road motorcycle show and the organisers advise visitors to book tickets in advance to save money and to beat the queues. To celebrate the 10th year of the Dirt Bike Show at Stoneleigh Park advance tickets are being sold at the fantastic price of £10 for an adult and £5 for a youth (7-16). That's a whopping 33% saving compared to the on-the-door price.

"Advance ticket holders get priority entry and with several thousand visitors expected each day we need to minimise the queues, hence the great deal on advance tickets" says Show Co-ordinator Joanne Watson.

Family tickets for two adults and two children are also available in advance at £25 and children aged 6 and under get in for free, underlying the Dirt Bike Show's commitment to providing a great day out for all the family. The climbing wall – a favourite for all ages - will once again be free of charge in Hall 1. Free parking and a free colour brochure will be provided as before.

Details of the headline act for the Live Action Arena are due to be announced shortly and the Dirt Bike Show website contains up to date information on all that is happening. From now until the Dirt Bike Show opens there will be monthly competitions online too, so check back each month. The 2009 Dirt Bike Show will run at Stoneleigh Park from Thursday 5th November – Sunday 8th November 9.30-5.30 (9.30-5pm Sunday).

Advance ticket hotline is 0844 581 0735 or via the website www.dirtbikeshow.co.uk